CONSUMER SERVICES

Until March 2020 our walks, races, etc. helped people with epilepsy share their concerns with over 541 attendees state-wide. Support groups, involving over 284 people across Virginia, met regularly. Direct assistance went to 77 families, which included new bicycles and helmets, grants for seizure alert dogs, transportation and medication assistance. The Tour de Midnight, our annual bike ride in the Richmond area had 525 participants. Many clients find our online booklets (on www.epilepsyva.com) useful. We hosted HOBSCOTCH memory courses. Since March 2020, staff has concentrated on getting medication to epilepsy heroes, emphasizing telemedicine and trying to reduce stress through virtual support groups. Senior management cut 25% of net salary and all coworkers donated after the pandemic. EFVA is proud of its impressive team.

PUBLIC EDUCATION

EFVA remains committed to dispelling all the myths surrounding seizures, seizure first aid, and epilepsy in daily interactions. To this end, we spread awareness through TV interviews, webpages, social media, and monthly newsletters. We participate in health fairs in neurology offices with information about epilepsy and the workplace. This year, we've increased our focus on epilepsy and memory. With increased prevalence of misunderstandings with law enforcement, our police training video for epilepsy is available online. Our walks, and especially our Tour de Midnight bike ride, generated a lot of publicity about epilepsy in traditional media around Richmond. Since March 2020, our main public education has been on Covid-19 and epilepsy.

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

We were involved in advocacy about epilepsy to the Virginia Assembly and federal legislatures. EFVA's role in educating daycare centers with VA Department of Social Services involves learning about epilepsy, administering medications, and safety measures. School training and training EMTs are part of EFVA's standard procedures. Since March 2020 we have placed many educational videos on EFVA's webpage, so as to continue dispelling the myths about epilepsy.
